Kathy Kita, Pastoral Associate, Director of Faith Formation

Week of September 6, 2015

Twenty-third Sunday in Ordinary Time

From the Pastor's Desk

In today's Gospel, Jesus' behavior might seem a bit shocking to us—sticking his fingers in the mute man's ears, touching his tongue with his spit, using “magic words” like ephphatha. It certainly looks more like sorcery than medicine, and we can readily understand why the witnesses ignored Jesus' command not to tell anyone about it. This was all rather sensational. Clearly a powerful wonder worker had arrived in their midst.

While we can see why people wouldn't keep quiet, we can also see why Jesus wished that they would; he did not want his acts of healing and other miracles to be seen as signs of his magical powers, as people inevitably would. Rather, he wanted them to be seen in light of what the prophet Isaiah says: “Here is your God, he comes with vindication; with divine recompense he will save you” (35:4). The mighty acts of Jesus are streams of salvation bursting forth in the desert of human alienation from God. They are signs that with Jesus the salvation of God has arrived.

Jesus did not want to be burdened with the trappings of human status and power. He knows, as the Letter of James puts it, that “God chose those who are poor in the world to be rich in faith and heirs to the kingdom that he promised to those who love him.” Yet in rejecting human ideas of him as a powerful, magical healer, he in fact claims something much greater for himself; he is the one who brings us God's saving power.

Lord Jesus, you touch the ears and mouth of the deaf and mute and command them to be opened. Help us to hear the challenge of your gospel and to proclaim it to all whom we meet Amen.

- Do I ever treat God as some sort of wonder-working genie who will grant my wishes if I ask right? How is this different from appropriately asking God for the things that I need in life?
- Who are the “poor in this world” whom I can identify as rich in faith? Where does their faith come from?

Shalom! Fr. Pat

Nice to be back with you!

In today's Gospel we hear how Jesus "makes the deaf hear and the mute speak!". Please call the Society of St. Vincent de Paul at 652-3153 so that together we can "make God's presence known" to those who are suffering and poor.

Parenting Perspective. Five steps to getting kids to obey: Step 1 – Get the child's attention. (Get close, look them in the face and make sure they are looking at you.) Step 2 – Give a short, clear direction. Step 3 – Make sure they understand your direction by asking them to repeat it back to you. (More next week)
